

Environmental permits: when and how we consult

We consult the public and relevant organisations on certain applications for environmental permits.

You can comment on issues that could affect you or where you have particular knowledge.

Where can I find the consultation?

Our consultations are published on GOV.UK

Here it explains what the application is about, how you can comment and when you need to comment by.

How long is the consultation open?

Permit consultations are usually available for comment for 20 working days.

How do you make a permit decision?

When we make a permit decision, we use information on the potential environmental and human health impacts of the activity.

We take all relevant comments into account so we can make better decisions.
